—A large audience gathered yesterday at the Lutheran Sunday school to celebrate the annual rally exercises. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. A few earnest and en-and encouraging speeches were made. The cornet duet by Messrs. Seaburg and Williams was greatly appreciated.

—Down in the eighteenth congressional district the Republicans repudiate the idea that some one living up in Chicago, or even in the state central committee, had anything to do with the recent victory. The Republicans there in that district accomplished the work and it is very cheeky for outsiders to make political capital out of that job.

—Ned Sickels departed last night for his work and studies in Chicago after a few days vacation which were spent with Leonard Andrus at the latter's island cottage. They brought home a wild goose that was very large, five feet ten inches from tip to tip of wings and weighing fifteen and a quarter pounds, also a mallard duck and a bunch of jack snipe.

—Merritt Smith, a liberal, broad-gauged man, heretofore in favor of woman's rights, has changed his politics in that regard since while crossing the street one day a woman driving ran him down and almost knocked him over. He thinks now that they have more rights than he has and all he enjoys of the "new woman" movement is to see one go by on a bicycle.

—In the course of a speech delivered in Ohio last week Senator Sherman said: "I believe that if the Republican policy since the war had been maintained uninterupted by the present administration, and the McKinley law remained in force, subject to such changes as time proved necessary, the interest bearing debt of the United States would have been paid in full before the close of this century."

—The Chicago and Northwestern Railroad Company put on a new overland limited train, which made its maiden trip yesterday, making the distance between Chicago and Dixon in two hours and thirty-two minutes, which will hereafter be its schedule time. It will leave Chicago promptly at six o'clock p. m. and arrive in Dixon at 8:32. This is marvelously rapid traveling for regular service.

—We all, in this neck of woods, hope that our former member of congress may win. Unless all signs fail, a Washington dispatch says, Illinois will be represented in the organization of the next house of representatives in the office of clerk, the most important next to the speaker. Hon. Thomas J. Henderson, of Princeton, is likely to get the place unless there is a marked change in the sentiment of the members.

—The ladies of the Lutheran church have secured for the entertainment of our people next Monday and Tuesday evenings perhaps the most unique musical and literary combination extant. The Rosa D'Erina Song-Lecture recitals consist of delightful lectures or biographical introductions, read by Mme. Rosa D'Erina, illustrated by herself and husband, G. R. Vontom, with selections, both literary and musical; and as they are both, judging from their high recommendations, artists of superior merit, their entertainment will doubtless be a most enjoyable one.

—The sub-district convention of the Epworth Leage of Dixon district was held last week at Steward, this county The convention opened Tuesday evening with an address by Rev. E. W. O'Neil of Ashton, on Genius and Labor. It was a brilliant effort. The president, I. D. Woodford, of Morrison, was present and yesterday morning gave an opening address, giving inspiration and hope to the convention. Rev. G. C. Clark, the presiding elder, followed, outlining the spiritual work of Epworthians. There were fifty delegates present. Rev. R. H. Doliver, of Pawpaw, preached the last evening. The good people of Steward proved their hospitality right royally. A fine banquet was given the delegates Tuesday evening at the close of the service.

—Boys, have you forgoten the Cherry Sisters? We think not. They gave a never-to-be-forgotten entertainment in our Opera House several years ago, and have several times threatened to come back. They recently attempted to fill an engagement at Marion, Iowa, and succeded in finishing the first act, which wound up with the tableau "Rock of Ages." While one of the sisters clung to the cross under a flood of alternating red, white and blue light, some one in the large audience of boys threw a chunk of raw liver which landed on her neck. The show broke up amid a shower of decayed vegetables, in a row, and the audience left but not before the sister had sought out the young man who had thrown the liver and had given him a few smart strokes with a raw hide.

—The entertainment at the College Chapel last Saturday evening—a reading by Prof. Cumnock of the Northwestern University at Evanston—is spoken of, by those who attended it, in terms of unqualified praise. The professor perhaps stands at the head of his profession as a teacher of elocution, and certainly as a reader he stands in the front rank. His selections, given with that consummate art which is the concealment of art, were mostly in the Irish and Scotch dialects, but ran the gamut of the emotions from the ridiculous to the sublime. He showed himself complete master of his audience, swaying them with equal ease by his masterly delineations of wit, humor, sentiment and pathos. There were nine numbers on the program, the reader occupying the entire time.

Credit to Whom Credit is Due

ED. EVENING TELEGRAPH:

In regard to the removal of the Jefferson City, Mo., shoe factory and the magnanimous proposition of the Riverside Shoe Co. to turn over the fund subscribed for that purpose, to assist in the erection of the permanent building for the city hospital and also the generous gift of the said company to the hospital fund, I desire to say that this action was due to the influence and public spirit of Mr. F. A. Watson, vice president of the company.

The whole matter was finally left with Mr. Watson and he then made the proposition, a copy of which I enclose.

Mr. Watson has been much interested in the hospital project from the beginning and having in his employment so many people, many of them not having homes in the city where they could be cared for if sick or injured, it can be readily seen that it means much to his company to have a well conducted city hospital in the city in which their immense plants will all finally be located. C. H. HUGHES.

OFFICE OF RIVERSIDE SHOE COMPANY.
DIXON, ILLINOIS, NOV. 14, 1895.

C. H. HUGHES, Mayor City.

Dear Sir:—Representing as you have the Citizen's Association, as well as the public spirited men of the city, I write to make you the following proposition, viz., that we will remove the Factory that we are now operating in Jefferson City, Mo., to be operated in conjunction with the Riverside Shoe Co., either in separate buildings or in consolidation with our present plant, without accepting the amount already subscribed toward the payment of the cost of putting up another building; provided you can gain the consent of the subscribers referred to to diverting the amount they have subscribed to the cost of erection and maintenance (as you may be determine) of the public emergency hospital projected. We will, also, subscribe to the fund the sum of $500.00. Yours respectfully,

RIVERSIDE SHOE COMPANY.
By F. A. WATSON, V. P.

Dealing with Law-breakers.

A correspondent suggests that as many citizens are unacquainted with some of the simplest ordinances govering our city, it might be of interest to some if we would occasionally print some clause from the revised ordinances, bearing upon the duty of all citizens to be law-abiding. In this he seems to have forgotten that very recently we have done that very thing, and therein gives proof of how transitory is the impression of such things on the mind of the reader. About every winter, once at least we have reprinted the clause he specially refers to, which makes it an offense to disturb in any manner public religious assembles, and fixes the penalty at from $5 to $50.

It is not the publication, but the execution of a law, which insures its observance. What do the young men (and young girls too, for that matter) who disturb and annoy those who attend church for purposes of worship—what do they care whether or not their actions are legal, so long as their conduct goes unpunished. They certainly do know that they are violating the social law of decency and order, so that for law itself they can have no respect. The only thing which could have a salutary effect on such petty offenders and inspire them with some respect for law, would be an arrest, a fine, and the publication of their names with those which appear in justice court.

In the early settlement of the Northwest, Rev. Peter Cartwright, (an uncle of Judge Cartwright the Republican candidate for Supreme Justice) had a way of putting a quietus on such disturbances that might not be applicable to polite society, but was certainly very effective. One time he was preaching at a camp-meeting in this state, and a disturber who had not sized up the temper or the muscle of the old man, had annoyed the congregation until Mr. Cartwright deemed patience no longer a virtue, so he came down from the stand (he was already in his shirt-sleeves, i. e. minus coat and collar) walked up to the fellow, gave him a severe thrashing; then went back and finished his sermon. Peter Cartwright's meetings in that vicinity were never afterward disturbed.

With regard to the disturbances complained of by our correspondent, we would suggest that the ushers of the chuch be made special police with power to make prompt arrests of all violators of section 8, chapter 24 of the revised ordinances, and that they fearlessly do their duty. This is the section:

"Whosoever shall, within said city, disquiet or disturb any congregation or assembly, met for religious worship, or other lawful purpose, by making a noise, or by any rude, indecent or ungentlemanly behavior, or profane discourse; within its place of worship or meeting, or so near the same as to disturb the good order and solemnity of the meeting, shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five dollars, nor more than fifty dollars, for each offense."

Bones of a Mastodon.

Wednesday afternoon, while ditchers were at work straightening out the course of Kyte creek on the farm of Henry King, they unearthed a large number of bones of a mastodon or some other now extinct animal of past ages. They were in a fair state of preservation. Would it not be a good idea if they were secured by some one for our public schools?—Rochelle Register.

All exhibitors of Chrysanthemums please send your plants to Rosbrook's Hall tomorrow. Tie the branches closely together, and then wrap carefully with a thick paper so that the plants may neither get broken nor chilled. In case you have neglected obtaining tags, put your name on each plant and tags will be furnished at the Hall.

M. CAHILL, No. 10 First St.

—A Grand Detour correspondent of the Polo Press relates the following, which is a pretty good story, but not a new one, as it makes its periodical rounds with change of locality: "A well known farmer of this town went to Oregon last Saturday evening, to buy a new suit of clothes. After making the purchase he got a drink. While coming home at night the idea came into his brain to surprise his wife by appearing dressed in his new suit. So in the road he undressed and threw his old suit into the creek, not knowing that he had lost his new one out of the wagon. Unable to find either, he was obliged to wander home like a Zulu, and of course he surprised his wife."

—Hon. J. J. Davis tells how the Republicans carried the eighteenth congressional district and he gives no credit to any gentlemen of the state central committee up in Chicago. He says, and the lesson is worthy of imitation, that the Republicans held only two little meetings but in every school district in all the six counties there was an organization of Republican workers. The plan of campaign was superb. From the chairman's office no less than 10,000 personal letters were written and sent out to all parts of the district. The result is well known. Every county was carried by the Republicans. We did it because we worked and because the people believed us.

—A new life of Abraham Lincoln, with 300 illustrations, made its appearance in McClure's Mafiazine for November. It more especially relates to a period of Lincoln's career before he was elected to the Presidency, and has been prepared with the kindly co-operation and assistance of many who were his most intimate friends. Among the portraits is one copied from a daguerreotype which was probably taken when he was between thirty-five and forty years old, and is singulary free from that careworn expression of the features which characterize the pictures of Lincoln after assuming public duties that ultimately culminated in his tragic death. The price of McClure's magazine is but $1 a year, single copies 10 cents, and this should place the new history of the great emancipator within the reach of every family in the country. In addition to the chapters devoted to Lincoln, a large number of other interesting articles are furnished by the prominet writers of the country, making "McClure's" one of the leading magazines.

DEATH IN A CHASM.

Cleveland Appalled by a Horror at a Drawbridge.

A CONDUCTOR'S TERRIBLE MISTAKE

Carries Himself and Eighteen Others to a Drop Into an Open Draw, Down 101 Feet to Death—A Case of Inexplicable Absence of Mind That Has Plunged Cleveland Into Mourning—Names of the Recovered Victims, Four Others Being Missing—The Motorman's Story.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—The people of this city stood appalled when they realized the full horror of the terrible accident which occurred Saturday evening on the big Central viaduct. It was the worst accident that had ever happened in this city, and the story of how the motor car loaded with men, women and children had plunged through the open draw, straight down 101 feet into the river, was told over and over again. The Central viaduct is a huge stilt bridge, 3,000 feet long, made of iron. It connects the heights and the prosperous residence section on the south side with the business center of the city. Directly over the river is a draw bridge of the pivot-swinging pattern, and this is 101 feet above the surface of the water. The South Side Street railway passes over the bridge and on either side of the draw there is a safety switch, which—unless the conductor alights and holds up a handle—will send a car into the gutter instead of allowing it to go on the draw.

Impossible to Tell How It Happened.

How it happened will probably never be known, but the conductor alighted as usual, went forward, and then deliberately—although the bridge was plainly open and a vessel passing through the draw right before his eyes—raised the lever, gave the motorman the signal to go ahead, jumped on the car as it passed him and rode over the brink to his death. Just as impossible is it to account for the action of the motorman, who was saved by jumping, and is under arrest. He was on the front of the car, of course, in full view of the bridge, could see—if he looked—the red light, which is always the danger signal, and yet he went on at the signal of the conductor.

Over the Brink to Eternity.

The motorman's name is Rogers, and he has been employed for four years. The conductor was equally experienced. The officers of the company are at a loss to explain the accident. The terrible fact remains, however, that the car shot forward and struck the gates with a crash. There was only a moment's pause, and then the heavy car ground its way through the wreckage and plunged over the brink into the black abyss, amid the screams and frantic struggles of the passengers who at the first intimation of danger rushed for the rear door. The car struck the water with a great splash and then there was silence, until was heard the rush of the patrol wagons and ambulances, the muffled roar of the coming multitude and the noise of the tugs that soon arrived at the scene.

List of Dead and Missing.

With feverish haste the work of recovering the bodies went on all night and until it was announced by the divers that there were no more bodies in the river. The list of dead and missing is as follows: Killed—James McLaughlin, base ball player; Henry W. Mecklenburg, merchant tailor; Edward Hoffman, conductor; Mrs. John A. Sauerheimer; Miss Bessie Davis, school teacher; Harry W. Foster, clerk; Mrs. Minnie C. Brown; Curt Lepchne; Mrs. A. W. Hoffman; Harvey Hoffman, 7 years old; Mrs. Martha Palmer; Marie Mitchen; Augusta Sarinski; Gertie Hoffman, 4½ years old; Louis F. Huletz, mail carrier. Missing—Miss Martha Sauerheimer; —— Looney, 9 years old; B. C. Page and Matthew Callahan.

SCENES OF EXTREME PATHOS.

One of the Bereaved Tries to Drown Himself—Motorman's Story.

The scenes about the river while the work of rescue was being prosecuted were pathetic in the extreme. It was a sad crowd, and out of respect for the unfortunate dead but very little noise was made. Occasionally the wild scream of some frantic woman who believed some one dear to her was among the unfortunate ones would echo over the flats, only to be taken up at a distance by some other woman whose heart was breaking over her loss.

As the bodies were passed from the fire boat to the willing hands on shore every few feet some woman would step out from the crowd, peer into the face of the dead as it passed, and "It's not him, thank God," she would say. As the body of a young boy was taken from the fire boat an old lady nearly fell into the river in her anxiety to see the face of the dead. She would not be put back. She threw herself on the body, looked into the face and cried: "Thank God." Falling upon her knees she raised her voice to heaven and prayed as only a mother could under the circumstances.

At another spot two men were trying to hold an almost distracted woman. She believed her husband was on the ill-fated car and was almost insane with grief. Women and children went this and that way, screaming and jostling each other; women tearing their hair and calling upon God to save their dear ones. Women fainted and were trampled on by the mad, rushing and insane crowd. It was impossible to keep any kind of order and the effort was finally abandoned. It was a crowd with a common grief. Not one of the multitude but thought that perhaps a brother, mother, father or sister was at the moment lying cold in death at the bottom of the river.

The finding of the body of little Gertie Hoffman filled the cup of sorrow for A. W. Hoffman, a grocery salesman living at 1508 Pearl street. She was the last member of his family. His wife and son Harvey, the latter aged 7, were taken from the river earlier. When Hoffman realized what had happened to him he became bereft of his reason. Rushing to the river, he plunged in and tried to drown himself, but was rescued by his friends who took him away and tried to comfort him.

August Rogers, the motorman, is detained at the Central station, though he is held only as a witness before the coroner. He talked about the accident and said: "When my motor reached the switch at the approach of the draw in the viaduct I shut off the current and applied the brake. The car came to a full stop and the conductor ran ahead and threw the switch. He motioned me ahead with a wave of his arm. I put my lever at the first notch and as I passed the conductor I looked back, as I always do, and saw him get on the rear platform. Looking ahead I thought I saw the gates at the draw closed over the track, but as my lights were burning and I had current the thought occurred to me that my eyes must have been at fault."

"When you first saw the gates of the draw were your lights burning and did you have a current?"

"I did have a current and my lights were burning. That is the reason why I thought of no danger. When the draw is open the lights usually go out, but it was not the case at the time of the accident, as I can swear. As I told you, I was surprised when I saw the gates and knew that I had both light and current, which has never been the case before when the gates have been closed, as the swinging of the bridge cuts off the current, and, of course, when this is done the lights go out."

"How do you account for the strange fact?"

"I cannot account for it, but I swear that it was so. I have never had an accident of any kind, until this one, and I believe this will kill me." Rogers is terribly moved by the accident. When his wife said to him: "But it was no fault of yours," he replied: "No, but think of it. Oh my God! Just think of it." It was some time before he could go on with his story.

LATER—The trucks of the car have been raised, but no more bodies found. Those missing are supposed to have floated away. It is certain that the death roll is nineteen in full, as enumerated in the foregoing.

FATAL FIRE AT DETROIT.

Match Factory Burns, Three Lives Are Lost and Six Persons Are Injured.

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—Watchman Wagner, at the factory of the Improved Match company, stumbled into a tray of matches, igniting them. Becoming excited he kicked the tray, scattering the burning matches in all directions and causing the loss of three lives and the destruction of the factory. The loss on property is $60,000. Six persons were more or less severely hurt. The names of the dead are: Reuben Davis, night foreman, 24 years old; John Wagner night watchman, an elderly man; Agnes Yettke, 17 years old.

The three burned to death lost their lives in trying to put out the fire. Before they were aware of their danger flames sprung up all around them and they were unable to escape. The injured are: Thomas Smidt, burned on face, back and arms, injuries serious but not fatal; Tony Pokrifka, not serious; Lizzie Kattanaske, nose broken and otherwise injured by falling down stairs; Annie Schulte, burned on neck; John Antaya and William E. Kennedy, suffocated by sulphur, not serious.

COLLAPSE OF A BRIDGE.

Crowd Witnessing a Baptism Goes Down—No One Fatally Hurt.

FULTON, Mo., Nov. 18.—Much excitement was caused yesterday afternoon by the falling of the Gerhardt bridge over the Stinson river, where an immense crowd had gathered to witness the baptism of a number of colored people by the Baptist colored church. The bridge was crowded with people, both white and colored. Without any warning whatever a fifty-foot span went down with a fearful crash, precipitating the crowd of men, women and children into the water from a height of fifteen feet.

The people fell in heaps in water four or five feet deep. A large number were more or less injured, but no one was killed. The accident threw a damper over the baptismal proceedings for a short time, but it was finally resumed.

NOT IN FAVOR OF ABROGATION.

Senator McMillan's Opinion Regarding the Anti-Warship Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Senator McMillan expresses the opinion that there will be no determined or concerted effort on the part of senators and members of the house from the lake states to secure the abrogation of the treaty of 1817, prohibiting the building of war vessels by this country and England on the great lakes. Senator McMillan takes the position that the treaty is of greater protection to the United States than to Great Britain, and that it would be folly for this country to cancel the treaty until the United States can secure a canal outlet to tide-water. He thinks a modification of the treaty, which will answer some of the complaints, may be secured.

Sovereign Eulogizes Debs.

WASHINGTON Nov. 18.—It is probable that the next K. of L. convention will be held in Hot Springs, Ark. At a reception to the visiting delegates speeches were made by United States Senator Butler, of South Carolina; Grand Master Workman Sovereign, and others prominent in the labor movement. Sovereign eulogized Debs and characterized the Malborough-Vanderbilt wedding as a matter of $400,000 spent to tie a nuptial knot. Senator Butler attacked "Hypocrisy, Plutocracy, Cant, Sham and Churchpocrisy."

Prominent Cubans in the United States.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—General Bartolme Masso, vice president of the Cuban republic and a general of the eastern division, is believed to have landed in this country on Friday night from the steamer Leon, which has arrived here. Cubans deny this, but it is stated that General Masso, his son, Dr. Joaquin Castello, Senor Verona and twenty-five other Cubans were coming to this country in order to aid Delegate Palma to present to the American congress more fully the cause of free Cuba.

Three Score and a Polygamist.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 18.—John Swan, alias John Mitchell, of Columbus, Wis., aged 60 years, was arrested in this city for polygamy. For the arrest was made on the strength of a telegram from Sheriff Schlukbier, of Beaver Dam, Wis. Swan was here with a young woman whom he married in this city last February.

Duke and Duchess Sail for England.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The duke and duchess of Marlborough have sailed for England by the North-German Lloyd's steamship Fulda. A large number of friends of the young couple were at the steamer's dock in Hoboken to bid them farewell.

Queen Not Afraid of Thirteen.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—As if in defiance of the ill-luck which is said to accompany the number 13, Queen Victoria returned to Windsor Castle from Balmoral in a special train consisting of thirteen cars.

SUNDAY LYNCHING

Maryland Mob Thus Celebrates the Lord's Day.

NEGRO DIES DENYING HIS GUILT.

Sheriff Makes an Opera Bouffe Resistance, Firing Twenty Shots That Hit Nobody and to Which the Mob Pays no Attention—Doomed Wretch Dragged to a Tree Where His Executioners Join in the Lord's Prayer Before Hanging Him.

FREDERICK, Md., Nov. 18.—James Goings, who assaulted Miss Lillie Jones at the home of Hamilton Geisbert, near this city Saturday night, was taken from the jail by a mob of 300 men yesterday and hanged to a tree in a field on the Jefferson turnpike, one mile from the city. A report reached the city about midnight that the woman had died from the cuts and beating inflicted by the negro, and this infuriated the mob which had been gathering in the streets and discussing the outrage. The mob, unmasked, but armed with revolvers, marched to the jail. They had previously broken into a machine shop in the neighborhood of the jail and procured sledges, crowbars and files.

Some Opera Bouffe Resistance.

They made at once for the door in the west wing of the jail and began to batter upon it. Fully twenty shots were fired from the windows above by Sheriff A. H. Zimmerman and his deputies, but the mob paid no attention to them, and went on with their work. The jail bell was rung to summon assistance, but none came. In twenty minutes the large door panels gave way under the heavy blows and the mob burst into the corridor. They quickly overcame the slight resistance the officers on the inside offered and found the cell in which Goings, cowering and crying, was confined. The lock was opened, the door swung back, and the trembling wretch seized and dragged out in his night clothes and stocking feet.

The Victim Protests His Innocence.

In the meantime the friends of the lynchers on the outside had lowered an electric light near the jail and cut the rope from it, extinguishing the light. Goings was led out amid the howls of the crowd, the rope placed around his neck, and he was hurried down the road to his place of doom. He protested his innocence as they dragged him along, and begged them not to kill him. He was promptly recognized by a number of men who knew him, and the mob did not hesitate in its work. Arriving at the tree the negro was asked to confess, but this he would not do. Two officers of the Salvation Army asked to be allowed to pray with him, and their request was granted. The Lord's prayer was then repeated, and the negro and most of the crowd joined in.

Mob Said to Have "Observed Order."

Goings' feet and hands were then tied and the rope was drawn tight around his neck. A man seized the other end of it, climbed the tree and threw the cord over a limb. "Let him go," was shouted, and quick as a flash he was jerked from his feet and hung dangling in the air six feet from the ground. One shot was fired into his body and in a few minutes he was dead. The mob during the process of lynching observed order. A member of the mob made a brief speech, in which he said that they were there with the unfortunate wretch not in a spirit of malice, but to make an example of him, and teach his race that they must let the women of Frederick county alone.

Assault That Was Avenged.

The assault for which Goings suffered death was a cruel and dastardly one. Miss Jones has thirteen cuts and stab wounds on her body where he hacked at her with a knife and razor. She says he asked her for something eat, and when she gave it to him he said: "I will give you a dollar." She screamed and ran fifty feet down the garden, where he overtook her, knocked her down and cut her, also crushing her nose. The field in which the negro was lynched is the same spot the negro Biggus was lynched on in November, 1887. After watching the body swing in the air a few minutes the crowd left it dangling there and dispersed.

THIRTEEN UNLUCKY RIOTERS.

Sentenced to Do Time for Their Turbulence at Spring Valley.

PRINCETON, Ills., Nov 18.—The thirteen Spring Valley men who have been on trial here the last three weeks on the charge of assaulting the entire colored population of Spring Valley last August with deadly weapons, with intent to cause them to leave the county against their will, were found guilty by the jury in the circuit court and all were given a penitentiary verdict except John Tista, who, on account of being under age, was sent to the reform school. Raymen Jordin, who pleaded guilty during the trial, is also subject to a penitentiary verdict, making the total number convicted fourteen.

Some others were included in the indictment returned by the grand jury, but they left the country soon after the riot and have never been arrested. Those convicted are, by nationalities: Italian—Peter Marietta, John Bartolio, Dominic Bartino, John Rochi, Lewis Bozetto, Joe Lemor, John Tista. Polanders—Peter Budvit, Joe Schneider and Paul Yerty. French—Jean Brault. German—John Lauer. American—John Quimby. A curious commentary on the reliability of testimony is that absolute alibis were sworn to in the case of twelve of these men, by an average of five witnesses in each case.

Two Democrats Found Elected.

LE MARS, Ia., Nov. 18.—The county supervisors settled the Marion township muddle by counting the tallies on sheriff and school superintendent under instructions from Attorney General Remley. This elects Conway, Democrat, for sheriff by 14, and Hise, Democrat, superintendent, by 6. The Republicans immediately filed notice of contest on those officers.

AUTHOR OF "AMERICA" DEAD.

Dr S. F. Smith Stricken with Heart Disease in a Boston Railway Station.

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Dr. S. F. Smith, of Newton, the venerable author of "America," died in this city at 4:50 o'clock Saturday afternoon from heart failure. He was in the corridor of the New England station and was awaiting the departure of a train when he was seized with a fit. He sank to the floor in a semi-conscious condition and only spoke a few inarticulate words afterwards. He was put in an ambulance and taken to the hospital, but was dead when the ambulance arrived. He had evidently expired within five minutes after the attack. He had been very feeble for some time, but was able to appear out as usual.

Rev. Samuel F. Smith, D. D., author, poet and linguist, was born Oct. 21, 1808, at Boston. He attended the Elliott school in Boston and won the Franklin scholarship in 1825. He was graduated from Harvard college in 1829 and immediately began studying for the ministry at Andover Theological seminary, from which institution he was graduated in 1832. During his course at college he acquired four different languages. He was ordained a minister in the Baptist church, served in the pulpit and as professor of languages, edited the Christian Review, and did duty in various other positions in his church.

For five years between 1875 and 1880 he traveled abroad and visited nearly all the missionary fields of the world. He was a prolific writer both of books and for periodicals and was proficient in fifteen languages. He was also a hymn and song writer and a composer. The last times he appeared on the public platform were April 3 last, when he was given a testimonial by the people of New England in Music Hall, this city, and at the late Christian Endeavor meeting, where he read an original hymn set to the tune of "America." Dr. Smith left three sons and two daughters. Among them are F. S. Smith, of Davenport, Ia.; Rev. D. A. W. Smith, a missionary in Burmah, and E. W. Smith, of Chicago.

JUSTICE TO GOV. ALTGELD.

Not His Fault That United States Troops Did Not Parade.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The story telegraphed from New York—a special to The World—that Governor Altgeld refused to march at Atlanta in any procession in which there were United States troops, and that was the reason Uncle Sam's soldiers were not in line on Chicago Day at the fair, is denounced as false in a dispatch from Atlanta. The officer commanding the regulars declined to take part in any parade except on national holidays, giving as his reason that there were too many state days at the exposition, and should he allow his men to march in all the processions they would be doing nothing else.

CHICAGO EVENING JOURNAL SOLD.

Bought by the Press Company and To Be Consolidated with That Paper.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The Press company, a corporation with a capital of $500,000, in which are George G. Booth, James E. Scripps and John R. Wilson, has bought the Evening Journal, or rather obtained a controlling interest in it. For the present the Press and Journal will be conducted separately, but within a month or two the papers will be consolidated. The price paid for the controlling interest is not stated. The Journal is the oldest paper in Chicago; The Press, until recently called The Mail, the youngest.

Great Northern-Northern Pacific Deal.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 18.—Judge Kelly has filed his decision in the important case of the state of Minnesota against the Great Northern Railway company and the state wins. The Great Northern and Northern Pacific may not enter into their traffic arrangement, and Judge Kelly grants the writ of injunction as prayed. While the case swings on what appears to be a preliminary motion, that for an injunction, the decision virtually determines the whole subject. The chief point of the decision is that the deal is a consolidation, which in the case of parallel roads is against the law of Minnesota.

Trans-Mississippi Congress.

OMAHA, Nov. 18.—The annual meeting of the trans-Mississippi congress will convene at Omaha Nov. 25. From 600 to 1,000 delegates are expected to attend, but there may be more. The subjects to be discussed are those which all the west is vitally interested in—trans-Mississippi freight rates, rail and water communication between western cities and the seaboard, national bankruptcy law, the Nicaraguan canal, the improvement of waterways and deep-water harbors, and levees on the Mississippi and its tributaries. The silver question will also be debated.

Exploding Boiler Does Awful Work.

VANCEBURG, Ky., Nov. 18.—Twenty miles south of here near the head of Grassey, a large boiler at the mill of George W. Stamper, Jr., of this city, exploded, killing Cecil Kidwell, the engineer, his body being carried 100 yards and horribly mangled. Wash Price was also instantly killed. John Edwin received fatal injuries and six persons whose names are not known were badly scalded.

Taylor Brothers Try to Escape Again.

CARROLLTON, Mo., Nov. 18.—The Taylor brothers, in jail here under sentence of death for having killed the Meeks family, have been foiled for the second time in an attempt to escape. The Taylors were found to have possession of a brace and bit, a saw, a file and a case knife.

BADGER HUNTS GALORE.

How the Same Beast Gave English Boys Fun For Two Years.

Did the reader ever catch a badger? There is considerable fun in it not unmixed with a certain amount of danger, for the badger can bite when cornered.

A party of English public schoolboys, with their tomboy sisters and cousins, went off on a ferreting expedition to capture rabbits a good many winters ago. There were also four fox terriers and two small boys of the village, who carried the nets, a sack, a spade and the ferrets. The dogs looked forward to the fun with just as keen an enjoyment as the small people, and as rabbits on the old estate were plentiful there was no lack of sport. At one burrow the dogs set up a perfect chorus of joy, and the party felt certain that there must be a dozen "bunnies" at home. The nets were soon spread over the different holes, but nothing would induce the ferret to go down. Even his hair stood up in silent objection, and one of the party thrust his arm down into the hole to find out what was the matter. A cold nose was felt, and the hand was withdrawn in a hurry.

The spade was at once brought into requisition. Every one expected to find a fox, which of course would have been religiously let alone. The gray striped forehead of a badger, however, was soon seen, and the joy among the small company was immense. Handkerchiefs were made into restraining ropes to keep off the dogs, and the girls had to hold them back, for no one wanted the badger hurt. There was a prospect of many a hunt in the future if "stripes" could only be got home. The badger had not a long tail, but the boys dug for it and found it, and then came the tug of war. Each boy took a turn, but there seemed to be no moving that rascal. At last two of them took a hand together at the animal. The dogs in the meanwhile were half wild with excitement, and the girls had all they could do to keep the dogs back.

The combined efforts of the two boys brought the badger out so suddenly that both boys fell on their backs, and the sight of the badger was too much for the dogs. They broke away from the girls, and in that little coppice might have been seen a mixing up of boys' legs, an angry badger fighting for his life and four terriers bedecked with handkerchiefs, who were warring against what they thought their common enemy. It was a hard job to tail that badger, but it was done, and he was safely placed in the sack. The youngsters went home full of pride, and many a good run that old badger gave them. He always had 20 minutes' law, and then with two beagles picking up the scent the boys followed on foot, with the dogs in leash. Once when hard pressed the badger crossed the river, and, though it was cold, the boys swam across.

The youths took care that the animal was not hurt. When brought to bay, he was tailed by one of the party and put back in his sack and driven home, where a plentiful supply of rabbit flesh gave him a hearty meal. That badger seemed to enjoy the hunt, and after giving fun for two years he was pensioned. A warm home and all he could eat and drink were given to him, and, barring his objection to dogs, he was almost tame.—New York Tribune.

Neuralgia.

The following are homely remedies for neuralgia: Boil a handful of lobelia in half a pint of water, strain and add a teaspoonful of fine salt. Wring cloths out of the liquid, very hot, and apply till the pain ceases, changing as fast as cold, then cover with dry cloths for awhile, to prevent taking cold. Two large tablespoonfuls eau de cologne and two teaspoonfuls fine salt mixed in a bottle make an excellent mixture to be inhaled for facial neuralgia. Horseradish, prepared the same as for the table, applied to the temple or wrist, is also recommended.—Exchange.

A Prayer For Fine Weather.

There was the minister of Broughton who prayed for dry weather in the midst of a perfect downpour, and when notwithstanding his prayers the great blasts of rain still beat on the window, exclaimed in his aggravation, "Lord, Lord, but this is maist reedeklous!" — Macmillan's Magazine.

EUROPE'S PUZZLE.

May Have To Be Given a Solution by Uncle Sam.

THE TURK GETTING MIGHTY RASH.

American Missions Laid in Ruins, but Luckily for the Sultan no Lives Taken—Friends of the Imperiled People Appealing to the State Department—England Seems Inclined to Temporize Further—More Mosiem Massacres.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The cable received here by the state department from Minister Terrell at Constantinople stating that a massacre of Christians had taken place at Kharput, Armenia, and that the American missionary property had been destroyed was later confirmed by a telegram from Boston giving another cable from Constantinople addressed to the American Board of Foreign Missions from Rev. H. O. Dwight. This cable is as follows: "Five hundred were killed in Kharput. Eight of the twelve mission buildings were burned; lives spared but houses stripped. The Turks will regard this as a test of the intention of the United States to defend the missions. No missionaries anywhere killed, but villages everywhere desolated; the people are naked and starving. Instant help."

Out of Reach of Warships.

The missionaries at Kharput are all from eastern states. The property destroyed is valued at between $75,000 and $100,000. The telegram from Terrell said that the number killed was 800 and this is confirmed from other sources. The scene of the massacre is far inland and beyond the reach of a man-of-war, which would be obliged to pass the Dardanelles and enter the Black sea to approach even the neighboring coast. It was at this very point, Kharput, that the state department sought to establish a consulate, in which purpose it has been defeated so far by the refusal of the Turkish government to issue an exequatur to Mr. Hunter, sent there from the department as the first consul. The latest news is so appalling that in government circles it is a matter of wonder that the European powers can longer remain inactive.

Friends of the Missions Active.

The news of the destruction of American missions has started the friends of the missionaries all over the country to telegraphing the state department. From Grand Rapids, Mich., comes a dispatch from the Park Congregational church "urgently requesting that every possible effort be made to obtain reparation and to secure protection for life and property." From Representative Griffin, of the Seventh Wisconsin district, at Eau Claire, comes a similar plea. Assistant Secretary Uhl has replied declaring that "nothing is being omitted by the state department in the direction of appropriate and energetic action." In this connection a cable from Marseilles, France, says the cruiser San Francisco has sailed for Turkish waters.

Turks Lay It to the Armenians.

In spite of these late reports the Turkish legation here has laid before the state department another batch of telegrams from the porte, charging that the entire trouble is due to the Armenians, who are attacking the helpless Turks and slaughtering them by scores; declaring that measures are being taken to suppress the disorders; that 128 battalions of the reserves have been called to arms to bring about tranquility, and that soon "order will be restored everywhere." The telegram says that "As for the commission instituted for the application of reforms its work is already begun." To offset this there is a report from northern Syria of another massacre of Christians.

PLAYING WITH THE UNSPEAKABLE.

Inspired Article at London Puts England Among the Temporizers.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—It is evident that important decisions have been arrived at regarding eastern affairs, since this morning's Post publishes an article evidently inspired by the foreign office. The article is understood to indicate that the prime minister has decided that the utmost effort must be made to maintain the integrity of the Turkish empire. Continuing, the article says: "For the moment all thought of coercing the sultan should be laid aside. He has already given evidence of a desire to introduce reforms. It cannot be doubted that he will defer to the wishes of the powers as soon as circumstances permit him to do so.

"It is difficult to apportion the blame justly between the Turks and the Christians. Sir Philip Currie's instructions are such as to justify him in delaying the execution of reforms until the authority by which they are to be carried out has recovered from temporary weakness. At the present moment any naval demonstration in the Turkish waters, or undue pressure on the Turkish government, can only help precipitate a crisis from which Turkey's friends can hope to gain nothing and her enemies everything."

It is officially announced, says a Constantinople dispatch, that an Armenian disguised as an Arab was arrested at Orfah, bringing a letter from the bishop of Aleppo to the Armenian bishop at Orfah, asking him to send gunpowder and saltpetre to Zeitoun to aid the insurgents, adding: "Baion, of Zeitoun, will organize an army. The Armenians of Marash are ready and eager for the fray." This is all very well, or very ill, but another Constantinople telegram says that the French official reports insist that there are at least 5,000 victims as a result of the three days' massacre at Sivas.

As showing the condition even of the Turks themselves a correspondent wires: "Thirty-six more of the members of the Young Turks party have been drowned off Kalki island. This will be denied officially, but I am satisfied of the turth of the report." A News correspondent telegraphs that fully 20,000 Armenians have been killed during the recent massacres. The Telegraph's Constantinople dispatches announce that the Armenian reform commission held its first meeting on Saturday. The sultan promises to carry into execution the reforms proposed "when the disturbances are suppressed."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18. — Advices received here from Alexandretta, northern Syria, confirm the accounts of a massacre of Christians in that town in the presence of 300 Turkish soldiers, who did not render any assistance in the suppression of the disorders. Armenians and Mussulmans accuse each other of burning villages and other outrages which have occurred in northern Syria. The sultan has prohibited the entry into Turkey of all papers containing accounts of Lord Salisbury's speech at the lord mayor's dinner at London a week ago.

SUNDAY SHAVING LAW INVALID.

Decision by a Chicago Judge That the Law Is Class Legislation.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Judge Gibbons, of this city, in a carefully written opinion, holds that the Cody law, making it a misdemeanor for a barber to shave a man on Sunday, is class legislation and invalid. This is the result so far of the fight waged by Chicago barbers against the law. The case will be reviewed by the supreme court next.

The judge, in the course of his opinion, said: "The basic question of this case is, Can the legislature single out any one calling or avocation, which in and of itself is not harmful to others, and make it the subject of special legislation. It can not be urged that barbery is a pursuit inimical in itself to the health or morals of the community as it has long been recognized as a handiwork that very materially ministers to the cleanliness and comeliness of the human family.

"In truth, we find that this occupation was known to man long before many of the learned professions found a place in human economy. The prophet Ezekiel said: 'And thou, son of man, take thee a sharp knife, take thee a barber's razor, and cause it to pass upon thine head and upon thine beard.' The courts cannot take cognizance of the moral aspect of the case, even though a seventh day of rest seems to be established by divine decree or natural necessity."

GUARDIAN OF LEE'S TOMB.

Uncle Tom, His Old Servant, Worships the Great Leader's Memory.

Mr. C. A. Fonererden writes to the Baltimore Sun as follows:

"Having spent two days recently in Lexington, Va., among the hallowed memories of that ancient town, it then occurred to me how strange it must appear to our northern brother that the tomb and magnificent recumbent statue of General R. E. Lee should be kept and sacredly guarded, as it is, by a colored man.

"So, too, is General Lee's office, just as he left it, tables, desks, lounge, chairs, table covers, papers and letters, and everything even down to his inkstand and penholders, in personal charge of good old Uncle Tom.

"Nor is it an easy task to guard and preserve these venerated relics from the profane and desecrating hand of the relic hunting vandal. Yet with the sharp eye, brave heart and strong arm of the faithful sentinel there remains Uncle Tom, a worthy defender of those sacred things. 'May his tribe increase!'

"And now let me report to whom it may concern what Uncle Tom imparted to me concerning his relationship with that mighty captain of the valorous Confederate hosts. He began by saying in his dialect that he had enjoyed the proud privilege and distinction of being close to the great general in camp life for four long years, and that never once, in all that trying time, had he ever heard him utter a cross, impatient or improper word to man or beast. It must be admitted that a relationship of so long a period as that is, indeed, close connection, and who would be a closer observer of the great man's character and daily demeanor than that untutored brother of color? No severer critic is a man likely to have than his own valet, body servant or cook; or, at least, the foibles and shortcomings of the man of mark could have no greater or more perilous exposure than that to the scrutiny of his servant under conditions such as those in which Uncle Tom served his 'beloved master,' as he is wont to call the great general. 'He was a master and a father to me, too,' said Uncle Tom.

"On one occasion, in showing the statue to a party of 17 northern gentlemen he told them, as usual, that his old master was the greatest general in the world and the best man.

"'What! Do you, a colored man, say that of this man here in our presence?' asked one of the number.

"'Yes, I would say that before 10,000 men,' said Uncle Tom, and added, 'If you all had 'er had him, de wah wooder been over long befo' it was.'

"Then one young man in the party said, 'Yes, he was a good man, uncle, but he was on the wrong side.'

"Thereupon an old soldier, who was present, replied, 'But how many are there who think to the contrary, and this great man conscientiously thought otherwise, living and dying a hero in the hearts of his countrymen, with the respect and admiration, too, of the whole north and all the world.'

"Thus re-enforced, Uncle Tom said he enjoyed the speech of that good old soldier, once a brave adversary on the field of blood and strife. Then the young man retorted:

"'Well, he got whipped anyhow.'

"'Whupt! whupt!' blurted Uncle Tom. 'Does you call it whupt, sah, ef when like as you wus a-goin walkin frum here to the hotel, a whole parcul uf men would set upon you and bind you down? Now, dat's de way de general was whupt, sah, and only dat way.'

"Then Uncle Tom told me personally that on some occasions 'de Yankees had 200 to 1.' In telling him that I was in the old Stonewall brigade early and late, he became fervently eloquent in laudations, the loudest and most emphatic, of my invincible old commander.

"So, taking him through and through, I think it would be hard to find a more devout love for the south and its institutions than that of Uncle Tom."

Useful Cartridge For Sportsmen.

An ingenious Australian has invented and introduced a mica cartridge for sporting and military guns.

The filling inside the cartridge is invisible, and a further advantage is that, instead of the usual wad of felt, a mica wad is used. This substance, being a nonconductor, unaffected by acids or fumes, acts as a lubricant. Where smokeless powders, such as cordite or other nitroglycerin compounds, are used, mica has, it is said, a distinct advantage over every other material used in cartridge manufacture. Being transparent, any chemical change in the explosive can be at once detected. The peculiar property it has of withstanding intense heat is here utilized, the breech and barrel being kept constantly cool. The fouling of the rifle is also avoided, the wad actually cleaning the barrel. Any tampering with cartridges can also be detected.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Meetings Will Continue.

A large audience listened with interest to the final stirring words of the Evangelist at Grace church last Friday night. The Bishop said in his introduction that the calm, sweet thoughtful religious atmosphere that prevaded the audience was the result of christian prayer. "As for me, I will behold his face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied when I shall awake with his likeness," as found in Psalm 17:15, were the words of the text. The first three words, said the speaker, contain sufficient thought for an entire discourse—"As for me"—implying action, independent of what the world may think, say, or do. Excellent thought was given on the next two words—"I will," and in the further development of the text the three great awakenings that come to men were most graphically partrayed. Upon invitation three persons came forward and one young lady was converted. After a most precious testimony service, a member of a sister church voiced the sentiment of the audience in a vote of thanks to the Bishop for his very plain, practical, helpful words and service while in our midst. Rev. Stanford has formed many warm friends in Dixon, as was evidenced by the crowd that flocked around him to take his hand in parting fellowship. The Bishop will always be welcomed in Dixon. The meetings will continue. Rev. Shultze, of Sterling and Rev. Klapp will assist. *

All Is Not Gold That Glitters.

A good story is told on one of the Sterling boys who is now attending one of the dental colleges in Chicago. It is the custom for the student to do all kinds of dental work free of charge and the consequences are that they always have a good practice. Last summer our Sterling boy, whom we call "Shorty" for short, was assigned the task of pulling a tooth for a young lady. She appeared to be "dead swell" and was inclined to flirt. The operation ended with an invitation to call. The address was in one of the swell portions of the city, and "Shorty" decided that he would improve the opportunity for getting into society. He paid the young lady a visit soon after the interview and found her awaiting him at the gate. After a brief conversation he was invited into the house, and to his horror he was taken to the back door and ushered into the kitchen. His dream of pony carts, liveried coach men, divorce and other pleasures of social life dropped and fell with a crash at his feet and his scalding tears soon flooded the debris and floated it out of the kitchen door. She was a kitchen mechanic.—Sterling Standard.

Acknowledged the Corn.

Governor Altgeld not only says that the Democratic party is bad, very bad; but in his interview some time ago he also said:

"For a great many years the Democratic party has practically stood for no definite principle. We seemed to be doing business under what was a sort of political false pretense. Our-so-called leaders apparently did not expect to keep a single promise that was made to the public, and they underestimated the intelligence of the American people by imagining that loud protestations in a campaign would always win, and that the talk about keeping faith with the public, was simply a silly sentiment. In drawing a declaration of principles we aimed to straddle every conceivable question, and we construed a platform to mean one thing in one neighborhood and the opposite thing in another neighborhood. The whole business of government seemed to rest upon the plane of political trickery."

This is a strange confession to come from the lips of the Democratic party's standard-bearer in one of the greatest states in the Union. It is however, but an echo of what every Republican orator and journalist in the country have reiterated "for a great many years." The truth of the Republican declaration did not need the verification of the last Democratic governor the State of Illinois will ever have, and we cannot accord him much credit for the acknowledgement. You know, in the popular mind, but little virtue attaches to a death-bed repentance; and Governor Altgeld, in his confessions of party duplicity must take his full share of obliquy as one of its "so-called leaders."

Missionary Meeting.

A good audience greeted Mrs. W. W. Campbell at the Baptist church last evening, and listened with closest attention for nearly an hour, to her description of life in India and the experience of herself and husband during seven years of service in that far away country under direction of the American Baptist Missionary Union. Their home was at Secunderabad in Teluguland, and their period of service included that of the great famine. She told of the Missionary's experience in a city where the gospel had never been heard and the religion, customs and dress of the heathen. Her photographs of the famine sufferers, and scenery, were interesting illustrations of the word pictures which, drawn in an easy and forceful manner, and toned, by a deeply earnest spirit will long maintain their place in the memories of the congregation.

At the close of the service the young ladies of the congregation remained long enough to form a missionary organization called the "Farther Lights." About twenty-five ladies indicated their willingness to form such an organization for the purpose of promoting the acquisition of missionary information and the organization was effected by electing Miss Anna Pratt president, Miss Nan D. McGinnis vice president, Miss Grace Miller secretary and Miss Mary Ella Pratt treasurer. Meetings will be held monthly and a regular course of instruction, provided by the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the West will be followed.

Mrs. Campbell also addressed the Sabbath-school, the Junior Union and the Young People's Union, and was heard with enthusiastic interest by all.

The Hospital on the Hill.

BY ACIE.

Let pity calm her anxious brow,
Let sorrow gather cheer;
For men have heard the cry of pain,
And mercy hovers near.
And charity, the angel white,
Doth tiptoe here and there,
To smooth the waiting couch for him
That cometh unaware.

Here wealth may prove its right to be,
And do its royal part,
The poor man here his mite may pour
From coffers of the heart.
Here angels tend the wounded frame,
And science grants its skill,
While love attends on suffering
In the Home upon the hill.

God's blessing on the generous souls,
Who, midst their own success,
Remember yet the hapless ones
In the hour of their distress.
We're proud of dollars for our wealth,
But sympathy and love
May overtop our balance, in
The ledger kept above.

And so, though thrift may swell our gains,
And magnify our town,
Not money-making enterprise
Will be our choicest crown;
But here where sickness finds a home,
A haven for the ill,
Our brightest diadem will be
The hospital on the hill.

—Loftus, the fellow who went through the city on stilts not long ago, is undoubtly a fake. When he was here he said that he was traveling from Green Bay, Wis., to New Orleans for seven hundred dollars. Since, we find from the Chicago papers that he has changed his story, and that he is now traveling in a different direction for a prize of $10,000 and purse. He succeeded in taking this city in great shape. He has what is called a snap.

A New Way of Paying One's Debts.

"Now, sir," said the shoemaker, "pay me my bill or I shall lose my temper. I have waited long enough."

"My good man," the debtor replied, "I have no money, but I will give you an order on Mr. H., who has been in my debt for ever so long. Here, take this sealed packet, but don't let him perceive that you know anything of its contents."

The shoemaker, in great glee, betook himself to Mr. H., and handed him the missive, which ran as follows:

"Dear H., the bearer, an unfortunate but honest man, has lost his wife and children during the last week and is besides threatened with imprisonment for debt. Persuaded that you will gladly seize any opportunity to assist a poor man in distress, I commend him to your kindness. Yours sincerely, C."

H. gazed with emotion at his visitor and pressed 30 shillings on his acceptance. The shoemaker departed in a happy frame of mind, little suspecting that he had been taken for a beggar.—Liverpool Mercury.

A Misplaced Mantle.

Arthur Waugh, writing in The Chap Book, makes this nice little "derangement of epitaphs" when he says, "The mantle of Arnold has fallen upon a barren shore, and there is none to pick it up."—Boston Transcript.

HARMON.

Nov. 18.—The recent rains have made the roads very muddy, so that by traveling over them with heavy loads they become cut up and rough. These rains have made it possible to do plowing which before was impracticable, owing to the hardness of the ground.

Most of the farmers are not near done with their corn picking. In many cases they stopped to shell, not having crib room enough.

There is a man here from Amboy who has been painting the Franklin and Consedine houses. He is a fine workman and his work shows it.

John Sutton has his new house nearly finished. The plastering is done and the carpenter work nearly so.

Frank Parker is nearly through painting the Hutchison elevator. It is a fine job.

There was a dance at the M. W. A. hall. There were quite a number who were present and they report a good time.

Thomas Long is putting up a fine coal house to put his coal in from the cars.

Mrs. N. R. Perkins, who has been visiting for some time in Wisconsin, has returned home.

Several of our merchants keep apples to sell by the barrel or in smaller quantities.

Mr. Seifkin has been numbered among the sick for several days. He is now convalescent.

Mr. Ackert has been finishing his blacksmith shop; a thing very much needed for some time.

Mr. Fetters works in the Hutchison elevator and J. J. Kelly in the Zeller elevator.

O. E. McIntyre was in our town last week on business.

Mr. Junk of Dixon was visiting at Schuylar Parker's, his brother-in-law.

The elevator men are now shipping considerable grain.

We are having extra trains through here every day, there is so much work for the regular freights.

There were parties here looking at land, their object being to purchase some.

Mr. Hitchcock has gone to Arizona for his health.

There has been considerable tile loaded here lately. Several teams were drawing it away.

There is considerable grain ground at the creamery for the farmers.

I call the attention of those interested in the mechanical branch of my business to the UNEQUALED QUALITY OF ALUMINUM PLATES I MANUFACTURE. The success I have had with them enables me to GUARANTEE THEM INDEFINITELY AGAINST Breakage and Mishap, common to the rubber plates. The metal is a perfect conductor of temperatures, produces a cooling wholesome sensation to the palate, and absorption of the tissues of the mouth cannot take place when this metal is worn. In the last three years I have manufactured over three hundred of these plates, and not one that has been delivered, and paid for, has been returned with complaint. I have no competition in the production of this class of work, as the combining of the metals used in making the dies, over which the plates are formed, the casting of the dies and their preparation for swedging, the adapting of the plates to the mouth after they are swedged, and the final whitening of the metal (which makes it permanently white) are original methods which I shall protect as long as they are of value to me.

Overcoat Department.

This is the right time for you to purchase an Overcoat. The reason we say now, is because we are naming some decidedly Low Prices on them. Little did we expect to sell overcoats in November at prices we quote. But the old adage: "Time and Tide Wait for no Man." A sacrifice in overcoats never heard of before in November. Think of it, to buy an All Wool Kersey Overcoat, elegantly trimmed with deep velvet collars, an actual $15.00 value, at You certainly cannot afford to be without one at that price. While it may seem high for some to put $10.00 into an overcoat, we have placed on sale those world renowned Washington Beaver Overcoats, never retailed by any one less than $16.00 to $12.00, at a price within the reach of all $7.50. Our Storm King Ulsters must also lend to this Great Sacrifice Sale, and as it is impossible to describe our vast stock of these, we would say that the cut in prices exists precisely same as in all other goods. $10.00
